CANADIAN ASSOCIATION FOR REFUGEE AND FORCED MIGRATION STUDIES
ASSOCIATION CANADIENNE DES ÉTUDIES SUR LES RÉFUGIÉS ET LA MIGRATION FORCÉE

WELCOME BIENVENUE

Dear CARFMS Members,

Welcome new members and welcome back to all those who renewed their memberships. We are very excited about our upcoming annual conference entitled "Spaces of Refuge, Exploring Practices, Perceptions, and Policies in Forced Migration and (Re) Settlement" being held this year at Saint Mary's University in Halifax from March 7-10. We have over 100 speakers, including our two keynotes: Iain Logan, Head of Operations for the Indian Ocean Tsunami & Haiti for the International Federation of Red Cross & Red Crescent; and Gerard Toal, Professor of Government and International Affairs at Virginia Tech, a founding figure of Critical Geopolitics. Fundraising for this year's conference has gone well, with the success of our SSHRC Connections Grant application. At the conference, we look forward to announcing the winner of our graduate student essay contest, and to hosting our international delegates, and delegates from across Canada. We extend a special welcome to students, to refugees and their advocates, and to the Halifax Refugee Clinic in particular. In addition to our opening reception, we will be holding a special reception at Pier 21 with a focus on displacement in the Maritime region in historical context. This year's conference breaks new ground by addressing the issue of Climate Change as it affects displacement. It is also the first time we have held our conference outside of Central Canada. We hope to continue this trend by heading west next year! Finally, I extend a friendly reminder to delegates to register and book everything by February 15 in order to take advantage of reduced rates.

Best wishes,

Morgan Poteet,
CARFMS President

Cher membres d'ACERMF,

Je souhaite la bienvenue à tous les nouveaux membres et à tous ceux et à toutes celles qui ont renouvelé leur adhésion à l'Association. Nous sommes très heureux d'annoncer l'organisation de notre prochaine conférence annuelle intitulée « Espaces de refuge : Explorer les pratiques, les perceptions et les politiques relatives aux migrations forcées, à la réinstallation et à l'intégration » qui se tiendra à l'Université Saint Mary's à Halifax du 7 au 10 mars prochains. L'événement réunira plus de 100 conférenciers, y compris Iain Logan, Chef du Département des Opérations for the Indian Ocean Tsunami & Haiti du Comité International de la Croix Rouge et Gerard Toal, professeur à Virginia Tech et un des fondateurs de Critical Geopolitics. Cette année notre Conférence a bénéficié d'une subvention du CRSH Connections. Pendant notre Conférence, nous aurons plaisir d'annoncer le lauréat du concours d'essai pour les étudiants des cycles supérieurs. Ce sera aussi avec grand joie que nous accueillerons nos participants qui viennent de partout au Canada, ainsi que de plusieurs pays au monde. Nous serons particulièrement heureux d'avoir parmi nous les étudiants, les réfugiés, leurs représentants, de même que Halifax Refugee Clinic. Notre réception inaugurale organisée à Pier 21 offrira l'occasion de souligner l'importance historique des questions migratoires dans la région des Maritimes. Cette année, notre Conférence accordera une attention particulière aux changements climatiques comme cause de déplacements forcés. C'est aussi la première fois que notre Conférence se tient hors du Centre canadien. Nous espérons ainsi organiser la Conférence de l'année prochaine dans l'ouest canadien! Pour terminer, j'invite tous les conférenciers et les participant-e-s de s'inscrire à la Conférence et de faire leurs réservations d'hôtel avant le 15 février afin de bénéficier des tarifs réduits.

6TH ANNUAL CARFMS CONFERENCE

Spaces of Refuge: Exploring Practices, Perceptions and Policies in Forced Migration and (Re)Settlement

MARCH 7-10, 2013

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA, CANADA

This year's annual conference brings together a host of delegates encompassing students, faculty, practitioners and policymakers, all united by their passion for the cause of refugees and forced migrants worldwide. We are all aware of the fact that the refugee experience is multi-faceted, affecting political, personal, social and cultural landscapes, touching on current policy and humanitarian issues and entailing far-ranging consequences. We thus look forward to sharing our collective expertise and generating new knowledge on these various facets of the refugee experience, pushing the boundaries of received wisdom.

The three themes for this year's conference are: global/transnational causes and solutions to forced migration; challenges to asylum/resettlement and humanitarian space in local contexts; and researching and theorizing displacement. These themes were developed in recognition of shrinking spaces of protection, as global and local challenges continuously jeopardize people's lives and livelihoods. Under this rubric, our panelists and keynote and plenary speakers will address a wide variety of specific topics from all across the globe, comparing and contrasting refugee and forced migration situations, documenting new developments and challenges, seeking answers to historicized questions.

Our conference will start on the evening of March 7th at Saint Mary's University, Halifax, with speeches from Kevin Vessey, Associate Vice-President, Research, Saint Mary's University, welcoming the delegates to the beautiful city of Halifax and the university, and Brian Goodman, Immigration and Refugee Board of Canada. This will be followed by reception and a unique exhibition of artworks by refugee artist Hashim Shariffdeen.

Iain Logan, Head of Operations for the Indian Ocean Tsunami & Haiti for the International Federation of Red Cross & Red Crescent will provide our opening address on March 8th, in recognition of the increasing significance of environmentally-induced displacement. The Annual Meeting of the Student Caucus and the CARFMS Annual General Meeting are scheduled for the same day, while that evening will see us gathered at the National Museum of Immigration at Pier 21 to enjoy a special event entitled: A Historical Perspective on Displacement in Canada. This will be delivered by local experts Gordon Pictou, Senior Interpreter and Program Director, Glooscap Heritage Centre and Mi'kmaq Museum, Marie-Claude Rioux, la Federation Acadien de Nouvelle Ecosse (FANE) and Claudine Bonner, School of Social Work, Dalhousie University. Participants are invited to a special open house at Halifax Refugee Clinic and another cultural event scheduled for March 9th is a film screening: Une Dernière Chance by Paul-Émile D'Entremont.

Our closing key note speaker is Gerard Toal (Gearóid Ó Tuathail), Professor of Government and International Affairs and Director of the Government and International Affairs program, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. An intellectually vibrant array of panels, roundtables and Q&A sessions will constitute the bulk of the program.

We would like to thank to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC) for funding through the SSHRC Connection Grant.

CARFMS' ONLINE RESEARCH AND TEACHING TOOLS AND PRACTITIONERS FORUM (ORTT & PF)

Website Presented at the IASFM14 International Conference, Kolkata, India

A number of CARFMS Executive members presented our new Online Research and Teaching Tools and Practitioners Forum (ORTT & PF) website (<http://rfmsot.apps01.yorku.ca/home/>) at this year's International Association for the Study of Forced Migration (IASFM) biennial international conference that was held in Kolkata, India, from January 6th to 9th, 2013. Our new website is an impressive and valuable complement for online instruction in refugee and forced migration studies, offering a unique platform to the public, at large, and CARFMS members, in particular. The purpose is to provide an easy to use and readily accessible online tool with the information, methods and techniques that are required to excel in both research and teaching in the interdisciplinary field of refugee and forced migration studies.

As we develop the website it will facilitate quick and easy access to the following materials:

Glossary of Terms

Key Concepts

Methodological Approaches

Theoretical Frameworks

Some Essential Organizations

Programs and Courses

Each of the key terms, concepts, methods, and theoretical frameworks are being developed to provide a wealth of information in one location for those who are conducting research or who are teaching in this interdisciplinary field.

What's more, a Practitioner's Forum (still under construction) was announced as an online platform seeking to connect CARFMS members and other researchers in the field of refugee and forced migration research.

The new ORTT & PF website was introduced at a roundtable entitled, "Refugee and Forced Migration Studies Online: Harnessing 'the Cloud' for Knowledge Generation, Instruction and Mobilization," featuring Professors James C. Simeon, York University (CARFMS Past-President); Giorgia Dona, University of East London; Vibeke Anderson, Aalborg University; Heather Johnson, Queen's University, Belfast (CARFMS Director-at-Large); and Michele Millard, Coordinator, Centre for Refugee Studies (CRS), York University (CARFMS Secretariat). Monica Abdelkader, York University (CARFMS Secretary), also assisted the roundtable speakers with their presentations and joined in the discussions.

The roundtable sought to examine how the latest developments in communications technologies, and the proliferation of websites such as the ORTT & PF and the Refugee Research Network as examples, have contributed to and facilitated the rapid accessibility of information and knowledge in refugee and forced migration studies. It explored how this has dramatically altered the nature of research, teaching, and policy-making in forced migration. While introducing our new CARFMS ORTT & PF website, session participants were engaged in a dialogue on how such online tools can be combined and utilized for supporting research, instruction, (whether traditional, hybrid or online), and policy and practice in the field of refugee and forced migration studies. Participants in the roundtable provided rich and insightful feedback on the use of such instruments in their own work.

At the Roundtable in Kolkata several distinguished academic researchers from around the world agreed to join us in the ongoing development of our new ORTT & PF website. This IASFM14 Roundtable proved to be a great success.

All CARFMS members are welcomed to join us in the ongoing development of our new ORTT & PF website. If you are interested in getting involved in this project please contact Professor James C. Simeon at jcsimeon@yorku.ca

Special Announcements and Publication Opportunities with REFUGE: CANADA'S JOURNAL ON REFUGEES

CARFMS SPECIAL ISSUE

Refuge: Canada's Journal on Refugees intends to publish a collection of papers presented at the CARFMS annual conference as a special issue.

For more information visit the journal online at www.yorku.ca/refuge or contact Dr. Christina Clark-Kazak at: cclark-kazak@glendon.yorku.ca

CALL FOR PAPERS

Special Issue: Environmentally Induced Displacement

REFUGE vol. 29(2)

With Guest Editors: Pablo S. Bose and Elizabeth Lunstrum

This special issue will explore the phenomenon of environmentally induced displacement (EID). From climate change to extractive industries, from 'natural' disasters to increased urbanization, from conservation to mega-projects, landscapes and peoples' place on them are being transformed at an unprecedented scale across the globe. We suggest that these as well as many other processes provoke specific forms of environmentally induced displacement and forced migration, confronting communities with the loss of their land and other vital resources. Many of the most affected groups are often vulnerable to begin with, lacking secure rights and access to resources and to formal recourse once these are jeopardized. This special issue explores the phenomenon of EID through both conceptual as well as empirical work. We invite submissions that address a range of questions such as: What constitutes environmental displacement? What practices and discourses help to organize and rationalize these processes? What are the demographic impacts of environmental displacement? How have various local and international actors responded to environmentally induced displacement? What are some of the definitional debates regarding 'environmental refugees' and their place within the international protection system?

Successful submissions may come from a wide range of conceptual backgrounds concerned with environmentally induced displacement. A variety of research interests will be explored with the objective of providing theoretical and practical insights on matters such as adaptation and internal coping strategies, livelihoods and sustainable development, prevention prospects, disaster risk management, regional concerns, cross-border legal implications, humanitarian responses, state action and inaction, and environmentally induced versus other forms of displacement (e.g. conflict, developmental, etc).

Contributions may be submitted either in English or French and will be published in the language of submission. They should generally not exceed 7500 words, or 30 double-spaced pages, and must be typed and submitted in electronic form. All submissions are subject to a double-blind peer review process by independent experts. Shorter papers, including commentaries and book reviews, are also welcome. REFUGE adheres to the Chicago Manual of Style for social science papers and to the Canadian Guide to Uniform Legal Citation for papers in the legal discipline (see style guide for details). Papers must be prepared with full citation endnotes rather than with a bibliography. Papers should include an abstract of approximately 100-150 words, highlighting the central arguments and/or findings of the paper. Papers should also include 1-2 sentences indicating institutional affiliation. Comme indiqué ci-dessus, nous publions également des articles en français. Le format doit être conforme aux normes exigées pour les articles rédigés en anglais.

For further information, please contact Tanya Mpala at refuge@yorku.ca

NOW ONLINE: IRAQI REFUGEES Special Issue 28.1

This will be achieved through in-depth examinations of a range of experiences of membership including, but not limited to, those of: ethnic minorities; citizen children of undocumented migrant parents; former unaccompanied asylum seeking children; people with dual citizenship; 'failed' asylum seekers; and stateless people. Participants are invited to discuss issues such as the position of the non-citizen in contemporary immigration and emigration states; the nexus between human mobility, immigration control, and citizenship; the tension in policy and practice between coexisting traditions and regimes of rights; and the intersection of 'race' and other social cleavages and legal status.

May 15-17, 2013. "Encounters in Canada: Contrasting Indigenous and Immigrant Perspectives". Centre for Refugee Studies, York University, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

This conference looks to foster connections through dialogue and reciprocity, between the differing yet similar experiences of Indigenous peoples, and Immigrant and Refugee communities in Canada. Aiming to fill this gap in knowledge, the objective of the conference is to build bridges – cultural, political, intellectual and social – between those who share the lands of what is now Canada. The underlying rationale stems from the fact that Canada is now shared by both communities, who encounter Canada in very different ways. Understanding how Indigenous peoples and various immigrant groups experience their lives in Canada will help in bridging this chasm, urgently needed in order to end discrimination and achieve equitable quality of life for all who live in Canada.
